

One Before The Road

of Freelancers Drum and Bugle on a final dress rehearsal last to leaving on a tour of the Mid-Assemblage will leave this eve- Arden Fair shopping center for the trip that will include taking part in 10 competitions before returning on July 6. At left, drum major Paul Zimny signaled the corps during the rehearsal last night in the CSUS football stadium.

in the south part of evening to pick up m said, a man knocked the keys to his car the house on 6th Ave He told officers th day period the four in and gagged him, ro stripped him naked, sex acts on him, po on his right leg and match, pressed bu against him and stru fists and belts.

Even when he was too afraid to flee.

He said on Wedne him to a class he dicapped persons. T up afterward. He stat him to class yester noticed his bruises a 24th Street to meet notified his father.

The young man sai however, arrived friend's residence an to the house on 6th Av

But his father had him, and finally dis parked in the drive Avenue address.

The son told pol knows two of the four.

Man Fe Assault

Michael Dennis E 1621 Kathleen Ave. i police with assault weapon and with ir murder in the r slashing of a 25-year-

Patrolmen stated r forearm of Patrici was to the bone and r loss of use of the ar she also is being Sacramento Medical cuts on her arms.

The slashing occ morning in the Kathleen Avenue v live.

nter

Funds, Raps Police Opposition

No News Gag On Rapist Attacks

Confronted by recent criticism of the sheriff's handling of information about the east area rapist, Sacramento County sheriff's spokesman Bill Miller said Thursday he has told news media of all the rapist's attacks and will continue to do so.

"It's our policy to release the information to the media each time that guy strikes," Miller told the Sacramento Public Relations Roundtable as he accepted its Public Relations Professional of the Year award.

But the sheriff's staff will continue to deny general interviews about the rapist and the attacks which have outraged the eastern section of the county, Miller said. That policy was set because reporters asking about the rapes were disrupting the sheriff's office, he said. "The office was beginning to look like an NBC production studio."

they go to the Police Department for help?"

Kearns responded today by saying, "I think they (the commissioners) are speaking in a vacuum. I think if they got out in the real world, they would find out. We're out on the streets, not just reading about them.

"If they (the commissioners) would like to see what we do rather than just talk about it, we would be happy to let them ride along for an education."

The request for the federal grant was approved on condition that the program involve minorities to a greater exten member Callie Carney, a black Sacramento councilwoman.

An SRAPC staff report said the center, operated by the Sacramento Women's Center, will place greater emphasis on rape prevention programs as well as counseling of victims in response to a growing demand for increased knowledge of prevention techniques as a result of attacks by the so-called east area rapist.